

Abundance Update

25th Oct 2013

The fruit picking is nearly at an end.

With your help, a total of 1355 kilos of fruit has been picked and turned into lots of jams, jellies and chutneys, bakes, eaten fresh or just put into the freezer. 356 kilos of fruit were passed to local good causes such as Merton & Morden Guild, Merton Vision, Merton Priory Homes, the Drop-In Centre for the homeless and Wimbledon Guild. The final figures will be put up on the Abundance Wimbledon website in a week or two.

In the meantime, why not take a look at Jean-Jacques's wonderful website <http://lesjardinsdici.wordpress.com> - with recipes for delights such as redcurrant & raspberry jam or pear and lemon jam. Also a step by step guide to making compote, using up ripe pears and what to do with damaged apples - and read why Jean-Jacques won't be picking elderberries again!

New Abundance Groups

We're very pleased that Abundance Southfields is now up and running. This started off with an invite from St Michael's school asking Abundance Wimbledon to take a stall at their summer fair. Jean-Jacques used the opportunity to get interested people to form a local group. They have now started picking and sharing fruit, there is a great website at <http://www.abundancesouthfields.com> and a newsletter sent out by project leader Richard Konig. If you would like to get involved or want to receive the newsletter, then please contact Richard on sharing@abundancesouthfields.com

We now have a group of people interested in setting up an Abundance Mitcham. The next step would be to get everyone together to discuss what to do. So if you would like to join this meeting or want to keep in touch with what's happening, then please contact joycepountain@virginmedia.com

Ageing Well Gardening Group

Gardens can be a pleasure as well as a source of lovely fresh food. However, they can get out of hand, especially when people get older and are not in the best of health. The Wimbledon Guild is setting up a gardening taskforce to give gardens a one-off tidy up. So if you have a couple of hours to spare occasionally and would like to put your gardening skills to good use, then please get in touch with Ben at bmutonphillips@wimbledonguild.co.uk or tel. 0208 946 0735. To see what this would involve, have a look at the information HERE

Here are a few events coming up in the next few days, then some useful links.

Project Wild Thing - Sun 27th Oct at 2pm

If you have trouble getting the children to put down the technology and get outside, you'll appreciate the film this Sunday at Wimbledon's HMV Curzon, which covers a campaign to do just this. Find more information HERE

The Merton Fruit Orchard Project - Mon 28th Oct at 8pm

David Channon is giving an illustrated talk on his work. He is attempting to track down and cultivate as many of the John Innes plant varieties as possible. So far, he has managed to plant 25 of a possible 42 in a small orchard by the tram crossing off Dorset Road. This is a John Innes Society event and everyone is welcome to come along. It's at 8pm at the Coach House in Melrose Rd, Merton Park. Tickets £4 on the door.

London Orchards: Preserving sessions - Tuesdays from 29th Oct

A series of 5 evening preserving sessions at the Made in Hackney kitchen, Stoke Newington. The sessions will aim to be educational as well as productive, and volunteers will go away with a sample of the produce. These will run from 6.30-9pm every Tuesday commencing 29th October. Please contact lewis@thelondonorchardproject.org for details on how to get involved.

What to do with Green Tomatoes?

Sutton Community Farm suggests frying them up for breakfast - instructions for this and for green tomato chutney can be found HERE.
